

Congratulations to the Girls Swim Team for its SWC Championship!

THE SPECTRUM

Volume 94, Issue 6

“The Maroon and Gold in Black and White”

January 31, 2020

Student sweetens AL with her cake business

By Ujin Bayarbadrakh
The Spectrum Staff Writer

We’ve all seen the pictures of flawlessly decorated cakes on Pinterest. A cute unicorn made of cupcakes or a gorgeous three tier cake with perfect fondant flowers.

It’s very rare that it actually turns out like the photo when we try making a cake; usually it turns out like a cake from Nailed It... by that I mean a complete mess. Or at least that’s the case for most of us.

One talented person who achieves that Instagram worthy look is Alex Martter, the baker behind Martter Made Cakes. The business began how all great things do: with our mom’s support.

“I had no idea I wanted to do this for money, but my mom was posting my “for fun” cakes on Facebook as I made them and people started asking if I was taking orders. We didn’t want to say yes because I was still really inexperienced, but for 4th of July weekend in 2017, I thought I could just make a couple dozen cupcakes and see if anyone wanted them. We posted about it, and within 12 hours I had 17 dozen orders worth. We were frantically buying huge bags of ingredients and cupcake liners, and throwing together some sort of plan. I realized the day before everything was due that we forgot we needed something to put them in! I had a lot of fun that weekend, but it wasn’t like I magically had a business then. It was still about a month of baking until the order requests started to pick up again and I started to say yes.”

Martter presenting her cakes at a local business fair.

Just over two years later, Alex’s business has blossomed. She has been baking for around ten years, and has been decorating for about five. With time and experience, the cakes still take a long time.

For the most basic designs each cake takes at least five hours to make from start to finish. Designs with more detail take from six to ten hours depending on how complex it is. Despite how much time this takes up, Alex

Could you really be drafted?
See page 3!

Winter Sports Updates:
See page 5!

plays sports as well.

She is a goalkeeper for the soccer team, does shot and disc for track, and has been doing gymnastics for over ten years. One thing sports and baking has in common is that they both take a lot of practice.

“My best advice is to keep practicing. It sounds cliché, but you should honestly see some of the things I made when I was first starting out. Set goals for yourself, and work toward accomplishing them. Seeing a checklist out in front of you makes all the difference in the world!” People wouldn’t give that advice unless it were true, so keep practicing!!

Avon Lake alumna brings bylines to life with Cleveland.com

By Madeline Thomas
The Spectrum Staff Writer

Imagine going live multiple times a day to report the news of Cleveland, Ohio and the suburbs surrounding it. One video could be breaking news, which means it’s unscripted and occurring in real time, or, if it’s a good day, then there might be an assignment about some adorable puppies that need their forever homes. No matter what’s in store for Cleveland.com reporter Hannah Drown, it’s never just a boring day at the office.

Drown has made headlines in recent years for flying with an aerobatics pilot, finding dogs their forever homes, braving a haunted car wash, and finding the best of everything in Cleveland. Hard work, dedication, and perseverance got her to where she is today- recording live on Facebook and racking up thousands of views per video. It’s not exactly where she thought she would end up, but life is just unpredictable like that.

Hannah Drown, Avon Lake High School Alumna and Cleveland.com Live Reporter

After graduating from Ohio University’s E.W. Scripps School of Journalism, Drown always thought that she would be nothing more than a byline. However, after a few jobs that she wasn’t too particularly fond of, her boss, who had recently accepted a job offer, offered her a position at her new company- Cleveland.com.

Not one to pass up such an amazing opportunity, Drown hopped on board and started her days of writing (aka, finally becoming the byline that she had always dreamt of). Of course, her story doesn’t end there, as she was soon offered the chance to start live reporting.

“I was unsure at first,” Drown said. Yet, in spite of her initial concerns, Drown took a leap of faith and accepted the position.

See Drown page 8

Understanding the problems behind greenhouse gases

As someone who aims to be as environmentally conscious as possible, I am constantly being exposed to new ways that will decrease my negative impact on the world around me. I hear people saying, “recycle this” or “reuse that.” Obviously, these things seem smart, but for the longest time I never actually asked why. Pollution is definitely a huge contributor to the damage in our ecosystem, but what’s all this talk about a carbon footprint? Before I did my own research, I was totally in the dark about what that meant. Greenhouse gas emissions, fossil fuels and ozone damage were all foreign concepts to me. As I became more informed, I was able to apply those ideas of “recycling this or that” in a much more confident way.

The term greenhouse gas applies to any gas in the atmosphere that will trap heat. These gases get their name from the principal of a greenhouse, which takes in heat from the sun to keep the plants warm, but doesn’t allow said heat to escape. There are numerous types of greenhouse gases, but the most abundant include carbon dioxide (CO₂), methane

Nicole Duvall

45%. The primary cause: humans. With this buildup of gases, the heat from the sun is being trapped on Earth. This excessive heat has created global issues ranging from droughts to melting glaciers.

Now the question remains, how am I a contributor to these emissions? Your carbon footprint is defined as the total greenhouse emissions caused by an individual, and you definitely cause more in a day than you realize. A large source of carbon dioxide comes from our burning of fossil fuels such as coal and oil. We use these fossil fuels everyday when we take advantage of cars, planes, and (CH₄), and nitrous oxide (N₂O). In low quantities, these gases are beneficial to the environment and help keep our planet warm. However, over the last 250 years, the amount of greenhouse gases being released into the atmosphere has increased by other forms of transportation. Further, the burning of coal provides over half the electricity in the United States. Methane is also very prolific in our atmosphere, with a large source being livestock farming. The world has a population of 1.5 billion cows, with each individual cow producing daily methane comparable to the pollution produced by a car in the same amount of time. Finally, the presence of excessive nitrous oxide can be credited to the use of fertilizers, as well as nylons and acids primarily used in cars.

Now that you understand greenhouse gases a bit more, you can see how things like recycling and reusing products can be so important. Reduction of greenhouse gases in our environment is essential if we wish to see a prosperous world. So take the time to ride your bike somewhere, maybe skip the burger one day. Perhaps individually these actions seem futile, but if enough people join in on the action, then enough actions add up to a great reaction.

Preparing for scholarship Armageddon

Alright seniors, the second semester is upon us but our college work is far from over. After applications comes the equally important and stressful month of February, or as I am lovingly dubbing it, Scholarship Armageddon.

Here’s the rundown: as some may already know, various national scholarships have been available for months. These are independent from Avon Lake City Schools, coupling longer application windows with a smaller chance of winning. Whether you have applied for these national scholarships or not, it is still a very good idea to take advantage of Avon Lake’s local scholarships offered in February.

The Avon Lake Common Scholarship, modeled off the ease and efficiency of the Common Application we all had to fill out in October, is one form that is distributed to all Avon Lake scholarships you apply for. Referencing last year’s packet, the Common Scholarship requires a resume, essay, copy of your unofficial transcript and two letters of recommendation (one endorsing your character and one from an educator). On top of that, some individual scholarships may have additional requirements. Of course, this all may be subject to change when the new packet is revealed for 2020.

Livie Crimaldi

Despite the ease of a one-size-fits-all application, the time-frame for these scholarships cannot be overlooked. The 2020 Avon Lake Common Scholarship packet becomes available at the beginning of February, and most of the scholarships inside are due at the end of the month. This leaves a very tight window for us second semester seniors who are prone to procrastination.

Our best bet, as February is looming, is probably to jump on some of the pieces we can get done early. Gather up the information you’re going to include on your resume, such as accomplishments and hobbies. Brainstorm essay ideas related to future plans and the benefits of a scholarship (such were the topics last year). Reach out to those recommenders you’re planning on getting letters from, or dig out the letters you used for college applications.

See Starting page 8

- • • • •
- Tri-C’s annual High School Rock Off •
- is returning to the Rock and Roll Hall •
- of Fame, this year with a whole new •
- array of up-and-coming high school •
- bands. •
-
- The competition will occupy the first •
- three Saturdays in February and end •
- in a Final Exam on February 29 for •
- qualifying bands. Bands that include •
- Avon Lake students are Blue Illusion, •
- Flower Shop, Revival, Buzzkill, Lake •
- Effect and The Queen Bees. Make sure •
- to come support Avon Lake! •
- • • • •

International conflict leads to questions about the draft

By Maggi Feit

The Spectrum Staff Writer

After the Pentagon confirmed a U.S. airstrike that killed the top Iranian general, Qassem Soleimani, the very notion of a third world war began to feel less hypothetical and more and more like the impending future for humanity.

This has provoked fear among many Americans, particularly those who recalled registering for the Selective Service System- a ritual previously completed as a seeming formality for young men after they turn 18. Individuals began to worry if they were at risk for the draft. World War Three memes dominated the media and Google searches for the term "FAFSA draft" reached peak popularity on January 4, according to Google Trends.

So the question remains- is there going to be a draft? In short, no.

Individuals do not need to worry about being drafted into World War Three. Involuntary conscription ended in 1973, and can only be reinstated if approved by Congress and signed by the president. These actions are unlikely and would require a great deal of political support.

Today, the military is an all-volunteer force, with about 1.2 million active-duty troops.

According to FAFSA AND THE DRAFT: WHAT STUDENTS NEED TO KNOW ABOUT SELECTIVE SERVICE, published on January 13, 2020, on thelantern.com, Professor of political science at Ohio State University, John Mueller, says, "The United States does have a very large military, volunteer military, and can handle, I think, almost any imaginable contingency without having to use a draft." He also said, "It generally prefers volunteers to draftees because they're there because they want to be as opposed to being forced to be there."

Thus, just because one is registered does not mean that they will be drafted.

However, even though the draft is unlikely to happen, all men between the ages of 18 and 25 are still required by law to be registered with the Selective Service Association.

Students, you can check your Selective Service registration status by visiting <https://www.sss.gov/Registration/Check-a-Registration/Verification-Form>.

Senior Spotlight

Maddy West

Michael Slaughter

- Winter sport: Gymnastics
- Goals for this season: My goals are to have fun, do the best I can and hopefully make it to states!
- When is your next competition? Sunday, January 26
- Best thing about your sport? It's different for each individual gymnast and there's always something new you can be working on
- Plans after graduation? I think I will be attending CSU to study pre-med or nursing
- Dream job? Pediatric sports medicine physician
- Any New Years resolutions for 2020? I want to start going to the gym more
- Who is your celebrity crush? Zac Efron
- What's your Netflix guilty pleasure? Grey's Anatomy
- Favorite song at the moment? Prayed for You by Matt Stell
- How are you feeling now that you're halfway done with senior year? It's a little scary that I will be graduating so soon, but I'm excited to move onto a new part of my life

- Winter sport: Diving
- Goals for this season: Get the school record for diving (already done at SWC's), go to states and do well (hopefully top 10)
- When is your next competition? Districts, on February 11th
- Best thing about your sport? Very fun, everyone supports each other
- Plans after graduation? Diving in college, but I'm not sure where yet
- Dream job? Stay at home mom
- Any New Years resolutions for 2020? Keep killing it every single day
- Who is your celebrity crush? Brandon Holton
- What's your Netflix guilty pleasure? Not a guilty pleasure, but I don't think The Office is as good as everyone says. Also, I watched every episode of Family Guy before they took it off Netflix
- Favorite song at the moment? Red Light by XXX-Tentacion
- How are you feeling now that you're halfway done with senior year? Sad because I'm going to miss my friends and swimming, but excited to see what the future holds

Ask the Students:

WHAT WAS YOUR FAVORITE CHRISTMAS PRESENT THIS YEAR?

REBECCA W:
Rollerblades

DEREK L:
Young Life Retreat

JOSH K:
Tennis Racket

MEGAN K:
Fitbit

MR VASIL:
Joggers ("spectacular flippin' things")

SAMMY & MORGAN:
Curling Iron and Socks

ALEX W:
Lego Death Star

MRS MARSALA:
Time with Family

KATIE W:
Space Heater

The Spectrum Sports

Browns' woes continue; Kyle Chandler questions whether hope is really futile

Well the Cleveland Browns are saved after hiring Kevin Stefanski as the new head coach! There is nothing like 10th times of charm in being selected as the 10th head coach for the Cleveland Browns since their return in 1999. But in all seriousness, is Stefanski the right choice? What makes him a credible head coach, and should the Browns be worried?

Firstly, Stefanski is coming off a solid season as offensive coordinator with the Vikings. Beating the Saints in the Wildcard round of the playoffs, a game they were supposed to lose, raises the question of why he is receiving backlash from the fans about how he won't be able to do the job?

Cleveland fans have seen enough losing. Not appearing in a playoff game since 2002 can take it's toll on any fanbase. And with McDaniels winning over the popular vote in the head coaching race, it brought big disappointment when the front office didn't pull the trigger, and Stefanski got the hire instead.

McDaniels wanted to bring about change in the program, and the front office was not too keen on meeting his demands. So how does this reflect poorly on Stefanski? Well, being the second or third choice surely doesn't help, but a lot of the community is concerned he is not credible for the job.

Kyle Chandler

Keep in mind, the public opinion was also excited for the hire of last years head coach, Freddy Kitchens. And as my well respected colleague Terry Pluto stated, he was the most disorganized head coach the Cleveland Browns have ever seen, and that is a significant statement.

No one knows for certain how the next few years will play out with Stefanski as the head coach, and while our stubborn Browns fans seem locked into disowning our new head coach, it is important to have optimism, especially as a Cleveland fan.

Stefanski has already made it a point that production is required on the team, and all the egos and personalities are accepted. As the new season will come upon us, we will find out if Stefanski is the right choice as he tries to get the Browns to the playoffs and further for the first time in almost 2 decades.

Boys swim team splash towards victory

By Emma Okuma
The Spectrum Sports Writer

Coming into the end of the season, the boys swimming and diving team are seated third in the SWC, only losing to Amherst and Westlake. Captains Nate Thain and Will Moses are confident that the boys swimming team will continue to be successful.

Photo courtesy of @AvonLakeHS

The swimming squad trained over winter had their senior night on January 16th, break, to continue their aspirations of achieving highly. "I feel like our team is going to have a lot of success," said captain Will Moses. "I think everyone is excited about our relays and making podium in events."

Continuing to lead the team to victory, Moses is ready to finish strong. "Coming into my last postseason is definitely sad, but I'm going to try to make the best of it for myself and my team." Moses said.

Considering the circumstances, the boys team is ready for other upcoming meets and to finish the swim season victo-

Marcy's Mindset

Youth Sports

By Marcy Allen
The Spectrum Sports Editor

I am passionate about youth sports. At age six, I put on my size 1Y cleats in preparation for my first soccer practice on my community recreational team. It is a moment I will never forget.

Prior to playing soccer, my daily routine consisted of going to kindergarten, having an after school snack, and then hanging out with my family. The day I started playing soccer, was the day I met some of my closest friends and began a special journey that taught me important life lessons. Playing youth soccer taught me about teamwork, commitment, and drive before I got into to first grade. Without those lessons I would not be the hard worker that I am today.

Youth sports are an outlet for children to break a sweat, as well as develop positive habits for their wellness. The commitment and dedication to sports at such a young age build habits that will develop successful adults. Through youth recreational sports, kids learn the importance of accountability. For this reason, I believe every child should have the opportunity to participate in youth sports.

Being in a healthy environment that will boost one's mental health is crucial to help children develop into well rounded adults. Competitive sports can create an immense amount of pressure and potentially trigger low self esteem. I remember when I played basketball in the fifth grade. I was not the best at the sport and I remember how poorly I felt about not being good enough. Without the right frame of mind, the experience can be damaging to children's self confidence.

Youth sports can also tarnish family dynamics. Parents can easily become overly invested in their children's recreational sport.

See Marcy's Mindset page 6

Marcy talks the benefits of youth sports

Marcy's Mindset from page 5

After playing soccer religiously on a club team for six years with aspirations to play in college, my parents had a hard time coping with the fact that I didn't want to continue my soccer career after high school. My decision created lots of tension in my family after so much time and money were invested into the game of soccer. Participating in youth sports is a commitment, therefore there are lots of emotions involved. Emotions influenced by youth athletics can end up hurting not only children's feelings, but also parents' relationships with their kids.

There are so many things I value about my experience with youth sports. The friendships, the healthy living skills, and life habits will stay with me forever. Even though, like a lot of other young athletes, I did experience my fair share of anxiety, it was worth it, and allowed me to grow into a better person.

Photo courtesy of Marcy Allen

Marcy Allen playing U7 soccer.

Hockey team skates towards triumph

By Marcy Allen

The Spectrum Sports Editor

The Shoremen Hockey team has had a successful season being first in the SWC conference with a 18-6 record, as well as winning tournaments such as the Cleveland Cup, Benedictine Christmas Tournament, and Avon Lake Invitational.

The Shoremen hockey team has talented players from all grade levels, which contributes to the teams achievements. "The strength of our team is our depth," said senior captain Justin Share. "Unlike in years past, we have a third line of Brady Starck, Murphy Mohar, and Adam Kelly who have played extremely hard all year and have excelled on defense."

For the 2019-2020 season the Shoremen have worked with an athletic performance specialist, Justin Leonard, to become better athletes. "Justin Leonard has made the team faster and stronger," said junior player Brady Starck.

Crediting their athletic trainer and hard work, the Avon Lake High School's hockey team had a significant win against their SWC rival Olmsted Falls. The Shoremen squad were losing with four minutes left in the game and came back triumphant, winning the match with a score of 7-6. "Scraping together 4 goals in the last 5 minutes of the third quarter was definitely the most memorable moment of the season," said Share.

The Avon Lake High School Hockey team plays the school's prime rival Avon on January 26th, at Rocky River Recreation Center. Be sure to support the Shoremen hockey team and watch them skate to victory against the Eagles.

Photo courtesy of @shoremenhockey

Shoremen hockey team after winning one of the three tournaments this 2019-2020 season.

Basketball shoots short

By Kyle Chandler

The Spectrum Sports Writer

The Shoremen fall to the Eagles in a heartbreaking loss last night. It was a close game up until the 4th quarter buzzer as the final score was 46-43.

With shooting an abysmal 3 of 10 from the line, it very well could have cost the Shoremen the game. The Shoremen fall to 7 and 5 on the season as Senior Tanner Russell reflects on the loss. "We couldn't make our shots and we struggled at the free throw line," said Russell. The Shoremen will look to bounce back Friday against Berea. The Shoremen will take the court locked and loaded with a healthy lineup, ready for battle against the Titans.

With so much talent on the roster, Russell shook his head in disappointment when asked the question on why the young season has not lived up to expectations. Coming back from recess the second half of the season is right around the corner as the Shoremen look to turn it around. With high hopes for a playoff run, Avon Lake is looking for answers before the shot clock expires.

Photo by @AvonLakesports

The Shoremen beat Berea-Midpark 51-48 on January 24th.

Gymnastics teamsets the bar high despite early injuries

By Morgan Hughes

The Spectrum Sports Writer

The Avon Lake High School girls gymnastics team has been newly reformed this year, and they have had three meets so far. They are adjusting as a new team and are excited about what is to come.

The gymnastics team has had a lot of success so far this year. “We just had a meet at Magnificat with Westlake and we came in second,” sophomore Elly Rauch said. “Some highlights include Anna Molinas first and fourth place all around at our recent meets and Brooke Mangano’s third place all around at our meet this past week.”

Their coach, Kelly Spear, has had a lot to do with the team’s success thus far. “Coach Kelly is really supportive of all of us and she really wants the best for us,” junior Brooke Mangano said. “You can see in her reactions to all of our routines in competition how proud she is.”

The gymnastics team has been having really helpful, fun practices prior to their meets that are able to prepare them to compete. “Practices are fun and chill and we get to listen to music and have the whole gym to ourselves so we work on upgrades and just cleaning up our routines and it’s rest paying off,” Mangano said.

The team has also suffered several injuries throughout the course of the season thus far. “We’ve suffered a lot of injuries such as Alex spraining her ankle and Elly hyper-extended her knees on floor two meets ago,” Mangano said. “Also, Anna was sick at the last meet, but it doesn’t stop us from getting better.”

The gymnastics team has a big meet coming up to look forward to. “We’re getting really excited for Senior Night at home on Sunday,” Mangano said. “We’re hoping a lot of people show up because we have so much to show.”

Shoregal gymnastics squad picture by the beam.

Photo courtesy of @alhs_gymnastics

Shoregals basketball looks to finish the season strong

By Alexis Miller

The Spectrum Sports Writer

Over winter break, the girls varsity basketball team had three fantastic games. One on December 21st against North Ridgeville beating them with a score of 56 to 42.

Another game was on December 28th against Elyria destroying them with a score of 73 to 30. The top scorer of the night was Junior Emma Knick and she had given the Shoregals 14 points. The Shoregal’s final win over break was on January 4th against Amherst with a score of 45 to 25.

Returning from break, the girls continued to be victorious. The first game back from break was on January 8th which was against Lakewood with a score of 60 to 29. January 11th was against Midview with a great score of 54 to 26 and on January 13th, the girls won against Brunswick with a win of a score of 63 to 27.

On January 18th the basketball squad unfortunately fell short against Olmsted Falls with a score of 37 to 47. The top scorers from the shoregals during that game were Senior and Team Captain Arianna Negron getting 8 points, Junior Cory Kroneker getting 6 points, and Junior Hailey Hodge also getting 6 points.

The girls have been working very hard this season. The varsity girls have only lost three games this season so far.

Some upcoming games are on January 22nd against our big rival Avon, January 25th against Berea-Midpark, and on January 29th against Westlake. Come support and cheer our shoregals on!

The Shoregal squad smile after winning against Berea.

Photo courtesy of @AvonLakeHS

“You” S2 continues to captivate

The second season of Netflix’s “You” has arrived and it’s even more addictive and chilling than before. We continue to have an omniscient focus on Joe Goldberg (Penn Badgley), who is now in Los Angeles operating under the new name of Will Bettelheim. Aside from the fact that Joe killed ex-girlfriend Guinevere Beck, the end of Season 1 saw Joe confronted by his (presumed dead) ex-girlfriend Candace who is now looking for revenge. Moving to L.A. with a fake name allowed him to escape Candace for the time being and get away with multiple crimes.

Marguerite Smith

he did with Beck from Season 1. He once again begins committing crimes for the sake of his relationship with Love and brings back the infamous plexiglass cage.

Aspects of internet influence and celebrity culture are infused into Joe’s life in L.A. and send the emo bookworm into the lawless world of online dating, social media, and grocery stores even more natural than Whole Foods. Even as Joe continues to murder and commit other crimes, we can’t help but root for him. Though he usually gets away with his crimes, the presence of Candace brings a much-needed reality check for Joe and a perspective shift for viewers. The end of Season 2 also sets the stage for another season, and it doesn’t look like Joe will be changing his ways anytime soon.

On his first day in L.A., Joe finds a new obsession, ironically named Love. From there he continues his former stalking habits and methodically worms his way into her life faster than

DO you like to write? It doesn’t matter the topic, The Spectrum would love to have you on staff!

Email
avonlakespectrum@gmail.com or join the Remind
by texting @alspectrum to 81010

Drown achieves reporting dream

From Avon Lake page 1

At first, of course, things were a bit rocky. Going from a writer to a reporter is no easy task, and the road to smooth sailing had some bumps in it.

Being able to transition from a preplanned assignment to breaking news can be tricky, but Drown has learned how to navigate it like a pro. Whether or not she has prepared for her assignment, she knows the ropes well enough by now to work in any situation.

“It really goes back to the basics that we learned in elementary school- the who, what, where, when, why- those are always fail-proof questions to ask,” Drown said. “I really just try to think of it as if I was the reader- what would I want to know? What information would I need to know to make sure the story makes sense so that there aren’t holes?”

Drown’s success is due to her determination, perseverance, and the unwavering support of her family. She knows that being persistent is better than being stubborn, and that every opportunity should be taken... even if sometimes that opportunity needs to be taken with a grain of salt.

Everyday is a new day for Drown, who truly loves what she does. There is nothing better for her than waking up on a Monday, eager to learn all about her next assignment. Thanks to her inspirational teachers at Avon Lake High School, her amazing professors at Ohio University, and her wise parents, Drown is now in a career that she enjoys while making a difference in the lives of others.

To view Drown’s videos and articles, just head on over to Cleveland.com or check out the Cleveland.com Facebook page.

Can’t get enough of
The Spectrum?
Follow us on Instagram
@al.spectrum for pictures, polls, and more!

Starting AL scholarships

From Preparing page 2

Don’t worry about formatting, as the Common Scholarship packet will outline the details when it is released in February, but by just prepping a few items beforehand you may save yourself a lot of time and effort later on. At least, I’m hoping it will.

Seniors have an important task ahead, and we must rise to the occasion in order to make college more affordable. So let’s buckle down, work relatively hard and make the most of what is offered from Avon Lake.

Got an awkward love story to share for the Valentine’s Day edition of The Spectrum? email yours to avonlakespectrum@gmail.com!